PENERAL STURGIS'S OFFICIAL REPORT OF HIS LATE EXPEDITION INTO MISSISSIPPI— BATTLE WITH FOREEST—DEFEAT AND RE-TREAT.

MEMPHIS, TENN., June 24, 1864. SIR: I have the honor to submit the follow ing report of the operations of the expedition which marched from near Lafayette, Tennesee, under my command, on the 2d inst This expedition was organized and fitted out under the supervision of the Major-Ganeral commanding the District of West Tennessee, and I assumed command of it on the morning of the 2d of June, near the town of Lafayette, Tennessee, in pursuance of Special Orders No. 38, dated Headquarters District of West Tennessee, Memphis, May 31, 1864, and which were received by me on the lst inst.

The strength of the command in round numbers was about 8,000 men, and composed

CAVALRY. 1st Brigade—Colonel G. E. Warwin, Jr.
4th Missouri, commanding; strength, 1,500.
2d Brigade—Colonel E. F. Winslow, 4th
Iowa, commanding; strength, 1,800, with six pieces of artillery and four mounted howitzers—the division commanded by Brigadier-General B. H. Grierson.

INFANTRY. 1st Brigade—Colonel A. W. Wilkins, 9th Minnesota, commanding; strength, 2,000, with six pieces of artillery.

2d Brigade—Colonel G. B. Hoge, 113th Illinois, commanding; strength, 1,200, with four pieces of artillery.

3d Brigade—Oolonel E. Benton, 59th United States colored infantry, commanding; strength, 1,200, with two pieces of artillery. My supply train, carrying rations for eighteen days, consisted of one hundred and eighty-one wagons, which, with the regimen-I wagons, made up a train of some two hundred and fifty wagons.

My intentions were substantially as follows, viz: To proceed to Corinth, Mississippi, by way of Salem and Ruckersville, capture any that might be there, then proceed south, roying the Mobile and Ohio Railroad to Tupelo and Okolona, and, as far as possible, toward Macon and Columbus, with a portion of my force, thence to Grenada and back to Memphis. A discretion was allowed me as to the details of the movement when circular the details of the movement, when circum stances might rise which could not have been anticipated in my instructions.

Owing to some misunderstanding on the part of the Quartermaster, as to the point on the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, at which some forage was to have been deposited from the cars, there was some little delay occasioned in getting the column in motion.

The following incidents of the march are taken from the journal, kept from day to day, by one of my staff, Capt. W. C. Runalle, A. D. C. and A. A. G.:

"Saturday, June 4.-Informed General Grierson that the infantry and train, under the most favorable circumstances, could only make a few miles beyond Salem, and to regulate his march accordingly. Train arrived at Lamar about noon; issued rations to the infantry and rested the animals. It rained heavily until 1 o'clock P. M., making the roads almost impassible. In-fantry remained in camp during the day. Cavalry moved to the intersection of the La-Grange and Ripley, and the Salem and Ruck-ersville roads. Colonel Joseph Karge's 2d New Jersey, with four hundred men, started at 6 P. At Ripley it became a serious question in my mind as to whether or not I should proeeed any further. The rain still fell in torrents—the artillery and wagons were literally mired down, and the starved and exhausted animals could with difficulty dragthem along. Under these circumstances, I called together my division commanders and placed before them my views of our situation. At this interview, one brigade commander (Colonel Hoge) and two members of my staff were incidentally present also. I called their attention to the great delay we had undergone on account of the condition of the roads the exhausted condition of our animals, the great probability that the enemy would avail himself of the time thus offered to concentrate an overwhelming force against us in the vicinity of Tupelo, and the utter hopelessness of saving our train or artillery in case of defeat, on account of the narrowness and general bad condition of the roads, and the impossibility of procuring supplies of forage for the animals. All agreed with me in the probable consequences of defeat. Some thought our only safety lay in retracing our steps, and abandoning the expedition. It was urged, however, (and with some propriety, too), that, inasmuch as I had abandoned a similar expedition only a few weeks before, and given as my reasons for so doing the arters and attention of the state for so doing, "the utter and entire destitution of the country," and that in the face of this we were again sent through this same country, it would be ruinous on all sides to return again without meeting the enemy. Moreover, from all the information General Washburn had acquired, there could be no considerable force in our front, and all my own information led to the same conclusion. To be sure any information was enemalized. To be sue, my information was exceedingly meagre and unsatisfactory, and had I rebeen successfully carried forward. All I could have presented would have been my conjectures as to what the enemy would natuve availed but little against the idea ward, keeping my force as compact as possible, and ready for action at all times, haping that we might succeed, and feeling that if we did not, yet our losses might at once be inant in comparison to the great benefi nat might accrue to General Sherman by the spletion of Johnston's army to so large a extent. On the evening of the 8th, one day beyond Ripley, I assembled the commanders of infantry brigades at the headquarters of Colonel McMillen, and cautioned them as to the necessity of enforcing rigid discipline in their camps, keeping their troops always in hand, and ready to at one a moment's notice—that and ready to act on a moment's notice-

t was impossible to gain any accurate or resiable information of the enemy, and that i behooved us to move and act constantly at though in his presence; that we were now where we might encounter him at any moment, and that we must under no circum-stances allow ourselves to be surprised. On the morning of the 10th the cavalry marched at half-past five o'clock, the infantry at seven thus allowing the infantry to follow imme-liately in the rear of the cavalry, as it would take the cavalry a full hour and a half to clear their camp. The habitual rules of march were as follows, to wit: Cavalry, with its artillery, n advance; infantry, with its artillery, nex; and lastly, the supply train, guarded by the ear brigade, with one of its regiments at the nead, one near the middle, and one, with a ection of artillery, in the rear. A company of pioneers preceded the infantry, for the pur-ose of repairing the roads, building bridges,

On this morning I had preceded the head of the infantry column, and arrived at a point some five miles from camp, where I found an inusually bad place in the road, and one that rould require considerable time and labor to ender practicable. While halted here to await the head of the column, I received a message from General Grierson that he had message from General Grierson that he had encountered a portion of the enemy's cavalry. In a few minutes more I received another message from him, saying the enemy numbered some six hundred, and were on the Baldwin road; that he was (himself) at Brice's Cross-roads, and that his position was a good one, and he would hold it. He was then directed to leave six hundred or seven hundred men at the cross-roads, to precede the undred men at the cross-roads, to precede the nantry on its arrival, on its march toward infantry on its arrival, on its march toward Guntown, and with the remainder of his force to drive the enemy toward Baldwin, and then rejoin the main body by way of the line of the railroad, as I did not intend being drawn from my main purpose. Colonel McMillen arrived at this time, and I rode forward toward the cross-roads. Before proceeding far, however, I sent a staff officer back, directing Colonel McMillen to move up his advanced brigade as rapidly as possible, without distressing his troops. When I reached the cross-roads, I found nearly all the cavalry engaged and the battle growing warm; but no ged and the battle growing warm; bu illery had yet opened on either side. ad four pieces of artillery at the cross-roads, at they had not been placed in position, wing to the dense woods on all sides, and the pparent impossibility of using them to ad-

Finding that our troops were being hotly pressed, I ordered one section to open on the enemy's reserves. The enemy's artillery soon replied, and with great accuracy, every shell bursting over and in the immediate vicinity our guns. Frequent calls were now made reinforcements, but until the infantry ould arrive, I had, of course, none to give g a brigade, and occupying a position on e Guntawn road, a little in advance of the ose-roads, was especially clamorous to be ieved, and permitted to earry his brigade the rear. Fearing that Col. Winslow might andon his position without authority, and nowing the importance of the cross-roads ous, I directed him, in case he should be rerpowered, to fail back slowly toward the ose-roads—thus contracting his line and trengthening his position. I was especially anxious on this point because, through some isunderstanding that I am yet unable to exain, the cavalry had been withdrawn with it my knowledge from the left, and I was compelled to occupy the line, temporarily, with my escort, consisting of about one hundred of the 19th Pennsylvania cavalry. This andful of troops, under the gallant Liouten-ent-Colonel Hesse, behaved very handsomely and held the line until the arrival of the in-

Grierson now requested hority to withdraw the entire cavalry, as "it was exhausted and well nigh out of ammunition." This I authorized as soon as sufficient infantry was in position to permit it, and he was directed to reorganize his command in the rear, and hold it ready to operate on the flanks. In the meantime I had ordered a section of artillery to be placed in position on a knoll, near the little bridge, some three or four kundred yards in the rear, for the purse of opposing any attempt of the enemy to

I found the section prop-ly posted, and supported by the 72d Ohio antry, with two companies thrown forward skirmishers, and the whole under the su-cintendence of that excellent officer, Col. nile and a half in the rear, arrived. It was mediately ordered into an open field near here the cavalry were reorganizing; there be turned round and carried further toward e rear. The pressure on the right of the te was now becoming very great, and Gen-al Grierson was directed to send a portion s satisfied the indivenient on the right was a net, and that the real attack was being made the left. Another section of artillery was w placed in position, a little to the rear of . Wilkins, but bearing on the left of our in line; and a portion of the cavalry was rown out as skirmishers. The cavalry nich had been sent to the extreme right ben now to give way, and at the same time of enemy began to appear in force in rear of extreme left, while Colonel McMillen relied reinforcements in the centre. In a few minutes, however, the gallant Col. cMillen, sad and disheartened, arrived and eported his lines broken and in confusion. The new line, under Colonel Wilkins, also gave way soon after, and it was now imposible to exercise any further control. The coad became crowded and jammed with troops, he wagons and artillery, sinking into the deep mud, became inextricable, and added to the general confusion which now prevailed. No power could now check or control the panic-stricken mass, as it swept toward the of his brigade of cavalry, and who never halt-ed until he had reached Stubbs'r, ten miles in rear. This was the greater pity, as his brigade was nearly, if not entirely, intact, and might Ass hearly, it not entirely, intact, and hight ave effered considerable resistance to the dvancing foe. The enemy pressed heavily on the rear, and there was now nothing left but to keep in motion so as to prevent the breaking up of the rear, and to pass all cross-roads before the enemy could reach them, as the command was in no condition to offer determined resistance whether attacked in the front or rear. At eight o'clock A. M. on the 12th the column reached Collinerville, worn out and exhausted by the fatigues of fighting and marching for two days and two nights, without rest and without eating. About noon of the same day a train exrived from Memphis bringing some 2,000 infantry, commanded by Colonel Welf, and supplies for my suffering men, and I determined to remain here until the next day, for the purpose of resting and affording profor the purpose of resting and affording pro-tection to many who had dropped by the roadside through fatigue and other causes. dent to a reverse at a pointso far distant from the base of supplies and reinforcements. Yet there is some consolation in knowing that the army foughtnobly while it did fight, and only strength of the enemy is variously estimated by the most intelligent officers at from fifteen thousand to twenty thousand men. A very intelligent Sergeant who was captured, and remained five days in the hands of the enemy reports the number of the enemy actually engaged, to have been twelve thousand, and that two divisions of infantry were held in reserve. It may appear strange that so large a force of the enemy could be in our vicinity, and we be ignorant of the fact; but the surprise will exist in the minds of those only, who are not familiar with the difficulty (I may say impossibility), of acquiring reliable information in the heart of the enemy's country. Our movements and numbers are always known to the enemy, because every woman and child is one has any experience in this war, can only learn the movements of the enemy, and his num-bers by actually fighting for the information.

bers by actually fighting for the information. That our loss was great, is true, yet, that it was not greater, is due in an eminent degree to the personal exertions of that model soldier, Colonel W. L. McMillen, of the 56th Ohio infantry, who commanded the infantry, and to the able commanders under him. While I will not prolong this aiready extended report by recording individual acts af good conduct, and the names of many brave officers and men who deserve mention, but will respectfully refer you for these to the reperis of division and origade commanders; yet I cannot refrain from expressing my high appreciation of the valuable services rendered by that excellent and dashing officer, Colonel Joseph Karge, of the 2d New Jersey volunteers, in his reconnoissance to Corinth, and his subsequent management of the rear guard during a part of the retreat, fighting and defending the rear during one whole afternoon, and throughout the entire wight following. fending the rear during one whole afternoon, and throughout the entire night following.

The lectures of M. Joly on spontaneous ge :eration, at the Ecole de Medicine, attract as many hearers as did those of Renan, Minet, or Michelet, at the College of France. The problem which he tries to solve has been de-bated in all ages. It has a place in Aristotle's bated in all ages. It has a place in Aristotle's works. The Fathers speak of it, and it was the subject of hot and absurdly subtle disputes in the middle ages, when most literal sense was attached to the Mosaic account of the Creation. The theory of spontaneous generation for five years past has been notly attacked by some and as ardently defended by other French savans. Its chief defenders have been M. Pouchet, of Rouen; M. Joly, of Toulouse, and his pupil, M. de Mussel. All three have brought forward most logenious arguments in its support, and hay firmly believe in this theory. M. Pasteur, who belongs to the Baconian school, has made intumerable experiments, which have led him to believe that there is no such thing as spontaneous generation, and that the birth of animal contractions of the support of an involving address the latest in the support of an involving address that the part of an involving address that the part is a support and the part of an involving address that the part of an involving address that the part of an involving address that the part of the p rab'e germs which float in the atmosphere.

THE IRREPRESSIBLE CONFLICT. This false dogma has no basis of fact, no

rase, with its sequent dogma, was the phrase, with its sequent dogms, was the invention of a fire-eater, to promote disunion. This tendency was so obvious, that when Messrs. Lincoln and Seward borrowed the phrase and publicly propagated the dogma for the purpose of sectionalizing the North into a political party to gratify their ambition, they brought their loyalty to the Union into doubt or suspicion. When first promulgated by them the dogma received the sanction of no disinterested, intelligent men. By all disinterested, intelligent men. By ch it was viewed as a mere hypocriticates of inordinate ambition, as a very thin tempted disguise to their personal aims. It disquise to their personal aims. It disquise to their personal aims. It disquise tendency was so obvious, ast their advocacy justly brought them need the suspicion of pursuing their m. reckiess of disquion. Their close fliation with those abolitionists who had to atrocious frankness to avow their have r the Union and Constitution, as "covenants with death and leagues with hell," increased this suspicion. Regardless of the warning of wiser and better men that they would infallibly cause civil war if not disua-ion, they pursued their selfish aim to the acomplishment of the prediction, and in ex-use for their crime they have incessantly inned the dogma into the public ear. Since they have openly abolitionized themselves by avowing abolition and not restoration of the Union as the main object of the war; since they with their whole party have shown engeance not reconciliation to be the main oject, the dogma has been reiterated with ew industry, with increased dogmatism. they industry, with increased dogmatism. It is their main justification, for the obviously disunion tendency of their measures and their bloed-thirsty pursuit of diabolic vengeance. If the dogma were based on any sound ory or actual experience it ought to har had its exemplication where free and slave l bor have their longest line of contact. It there the very crush of the conflict would have ensued. The Ohio river is that line of contact. Yet, no other border between States an show on both sides a more harmonious rapid, prosperous growth, ora better mingling the feelings of good neighborship. The Indiana, and Illinois have never yet man rested any serious general dissatisfaction with negro slavery as prejudicial to them. Abalitionism has been mainly confined to the northern parts of those States, where the inwhere by no possibility could they feel any The most unanswerable disproof of the rapid growth of our whole country in weal and population. This growth has been progressing with even accelerated rapidit ring the last twenty or thirty years, whil needed for an unabated continuance of na-tional prosperity was to save it from fanatic empiricism and the charlatan experiments of aw or selfish politicians. All the countreeded was to be let alone in its well doing But this did not suit the personal aspiration of Lincoln, Seward, etc. Hence the preaching of the new evangel of "the irrepressible

Though there is no truth in the alleged conflict between free and slave labor whilst kept apart in separate States, yet it must be admitted that there is such conflict between white and black labor. Tais is shown too plainly for denial by the legislation of free States prohibiting the immigration of free negroes, and by those mob violences driving back the attempted influx of "contrabands," despite that legislation. This however is not a consequence of the slave institution, for it despite that legislation. This newever is not a consequence of the slave institution, for it only occurs after the slaves have been set free. It is the sole consequence of the repugnance of the whites to the blacks—the strong, natural repugnance of race. Nature for wise uage, and physique, has implanted astrong epugnance of race to race. This repugnance eaks forth whenever the white laborer finds

If the dogma were true, then it is strange that they who preach it do not perceive what a strong justification it would afford the South or attempting disunion, and what a persuasive argument it would offer to the slaveholding bor

Instead of atonement to their country for the disastrous pursuit of their reckless ambition, they are attempting the destruction of the Constitu-tion and exciting a national fear of an in

Knowing as these men did that taking the nation as a whole full two thirds of it were unalterably opposed to abolitionism, that a million and a half if not a majority of the loyal leaters of the North were so opposed, their precipitation of the nation into the abolitionizing of the war and so closing the olitionizing of the war and so closing the door to reconciliation, was a moral crime only a degree less than that of the Southern leaders in precipitating the attempt at dis

Three years of war have burdened you with a debt which, but three years since, would have seemed beyond your ability to meet. Yet the accumulated wealth and productive energies of the nation have proved to be so vast that it has been borne with com parative case, and a peaceful future would hardly feel its weight. This deliberate and patriotic resolve has developed a power surprising even to themselves. It has shown that in less than a century a nation has arisen, unsurpassed in vigor and exhaustless in rescurces, able to conduct, through a series of years, war on its most gigantic scale, and finding itself, when near its close, almost unmpaired in all the material elements of power. It has at the present moment, great armies in the field, facing an enemy apparently approaching a period of utter exhaustion, but still struggling with a force the greater and more desperate as it sees, and because it sees, the near approach of a final and fatal consumliberty in which you are now engaged and cheerfully afforded the means necessary to support your government in this protracted struggle. It is your war. You proclaimed it, and you have sustained it against traitors everywhere, with a patriotic devotion unsurpasted in the world's history.

Ualm nd self reliant, our own means have thus far roved adequate to our wants. They are yet future. It still remains for a patriotic people to furnish the needful supply. The brave men inds must be furnished, or the war must end in defeat and disgrace. This is not the time or any lover of his country to inquire as to he state of the money market, or ask whether he can so invest his surplus capital as to yield him a larger return. No return, and no profit, can be desirable if followed by national dissolution or national disgrace. Present profit, thus acquired, is but the precursor of future and speedy destruction. Nonvestment can be so surely profitable as that rawal of necessary checks, often inevitable yielded about four and one baif millions of dollars, while the corresponding month of this year returned about fifteen millions under the same law. Under the new law, which went into operation on the first day of the present month, the Treasury not unfrequently receives one million in a day. As time and experience enable the officers employed in allection the revenue to a fewer the stringent. provisions of the new law, I trust that a milion per day will be found the rule and not the Hancock then, as his division came over, advanced a mile up the river, and Sheridan's, Reid's, and Gregg's divisions crossing immediately afterward, turned off on his right, and, with Merrit's brigade, struck the New Market and Long Bridge road at its intersection with the Malyern Hill road, some four miles above the Malvern, Hill road, some four miles above the latter place.

The second corps followed on his right, and then Sheridan's cavalry, feeling out all the roads and swinging round upon the enemy's ft flank. that the rebel capital will soon be captured.

Gen. Grant told him that his long delay

[Special Correspondence of the Louisville Journal.] LETTER FROM MARIETTA.

MARIETTA, July 25, 1864. Marietta, July 25, 1864.

I have heard rumors without number here this morning, but owing to my inability to reach headquarters before evening, I am unable to confirm or deny them. I shall, therefore, give you a few specimens as they were told me, with the hope that they may prove interesting if true, and amusing if false. At this moment the greatest suspense prevails as to the result of Sherman's operations. The few with whom I have conversed express great confidence in the ability of our great commander. It is reported that Gen. Hood has declared his intention to force Sherman to retreat across the Chattahoschie river or sacrifice his whole army in the attempt. In such treat across the Chattahoochie river or sacrifice his whole army in the attempt. In such an event, Sherman, without exhibiting the boestful spirit of Johnston, would have his adversary "just where he wants him." A "fair stand up fight" could only result in the defeat of the rebels. It is the opinion of many that Hood will actually attempt his proposed movement. At laying must still be fought for movement. Atlanta must still be fought for, and won, but only by conflicts in the future of the most desperate character.

It is reported that Hood sent a flag of truce to General Sherman, asking permission to bury his dead. The number of killed and wounded on our part is thought to be between two and three thousand—that of the rebels from seven to ten thousand. We have taken many prisoners. A more wee-begone look-ing set it has never been my fortune to look upon. The advance, to the number of almost twelve hundred, including fifty-five officers, arrived this morning, and are now lounging through the public square. They were taken from Hardee's corps.

Everything in and near Marietta gives evidence, not only of the fearful earnestness and stern determination of our commander, but stern determination of our commander, but also of preparation for the capture of Atlanta. Yesterday, on my way from Chattanooga to this place, our train passed a hospital-train of twelve cars, all well filled with sick and wounded. This morning twenty-five cars are standing on the track, filled to overflowing with mangled, bleeding humanity, ready to be transported to the Northern hospitals.

Heretofore I had recognized, in the ruined homesteads and devastated country through which I had passed, the track of the destroying angel; but in looking upon these poor fellows, with their shattered limbs, and inflamed, bruised bodies, a new and more fearful view was presented. Suffering the most ful view was presented. Suffering the most terrible agony from gaping wounds and broken limbs, their parched lips and livid faces—telling more than language could of their physical anguish; no sign would escape them, except of regret that nothing more than their lives could be given as a sacrifice for their country's honor. Oh, ye who would destroy the land which such spirits adore, what must be the fate that awaits you in days to come?

I am now sitting upon the verandah of a deserted mansion, writing this hasty letter, and as I write I cannot but reflect that perhaps the former inhabitant of this aristocratic looking dwelling has done his part toward shaping the destiny of these noble spirits, now languishing and expiring with pair. I have just learned that there was but slight skirmishing yesterday, and the conjecture is that Mr. Reb. is drawing his forces out of range of ou artillery.

The value of soap sads as a stimulant of vegetable life cannot be too highly appreciated. It contains the aliment of plants in a state of ready solution, and when applied, state of ready solution, and when applied, acts not only with immediate and obvious effect, but with a sustained energy which pertains to few even of the most concentrated measures. When it is not convealent to apply it in irrigation—the most economical method, perhaps, of using it—it should be absorbed by some material which may be used as an ingredient in the compost heap. Sods, muck, and other similar articles, should be deposited where the suds from the sink and laundry may find its way to them, and be absorbed, for the benefit of crops. In this way several loads of manure, suitable for the support and sustenance of any crop, may be made at comparatively small expense. The highly putrescent character of this fermentable liquid qualifies it admirably for the irrigation of compost heaps of whatever material composed. Being a potent fertilizer, it must of necessity impart additional richness to almost any material to which it may be added. Some fruit trees will never produce any good fruit, and some will not bear even poor one, and kept a pig or two in the inclosure. Four panels, about six een feet long, of light

GEOD. PRENTICE: }Editors:

MONDAY, AUGUST 1, 1864. Some of Mr. Lincoln's partisans in Kentucky are reckless and silly enough to accuse Governor Bramlette of inconsistence in condemning Mr. Lincoln's policy and op posing his re-election. The accusation is absurd. It is manifestly absurd. Nevertheless, we will take the pains to set forth its absurdity, manifest though it is, as the occasion ena bless us to place before the public, in a very striking light, the real position of the patriotic Kentuckians whom the minions of Mr. Lin coln amongst us are stigmatizing daily as copperheads and rebel sympathizers. We make no apology for the space the exhibition fills, for the space could not be filled with more pertinent or more valuable matter.

The Convention of the Union Democrac of Kentucky, which met in this city on the 18th of March in 1863, adopted a platform containing the following resolutions:

Resolved, That our institutions are assailed by an armed rebellion on one side which can only be met by the sword; and on the other by unconstitutional acts of Congress, and treting usurpations of power by the Executive, which we have seen by experiment can be corrected by the ballot-box. Policy, as well as principle, requires that Kentucky shall await the process of reform, which is slow but sure, and refrain from all unlawful and processitational early which have already and unconstitutional acts, which have already brought terrible calamities upon the country; whilst we invoke the aid of all patriotic me to avert the evils that threaten our free institions.

Resolved, That this General Assembly rec ognizes a manifest difference between any administration of the government and the government itself—the one is transitory, limited in duration only to that period of time for which the officers elected by the people are charged with the conduct of the same; the other is permanent, intended by its founders to endure forever.

Resolved, That this General Assembly now, in the exercise of its right to differ in opinion with the national Executive, enters its sol-emn protest against the proclamation of the President of the United States, dated 1st of January, 1863, by which he assumes to emancipate all slaves within certain States, holding the same to be unwise, unconstitutional, Resolved. That this General Assembly declares that the power which has recently been assumed by the President of the United States, whereby, under the guise of military necessity, he has proclaimed and extended martial law over States where war did not exist, and has suspended the writ of habeas corpus, is unwarranted by the Constitution, and its tendency is to subordinate civil to military authority and transfer to exist the constitution. thority, and to subvert constitutional and free government.

Resolved, That this general Assembly hails

resolved, That this general Assembly hails with pleasurable hope the recent manifesta-tions of conservative sentiment among the people of the non-slaveholding States in their late elections, and regard the same as the earn-est of a good purpose on their part to co-oper-ate with all other loyal citizens—give securi-to the rights of every section, and maintain the Union and the Constitution as they were Idained by the founders of the republic.

Judge Bramlette accepted the nomination for the Governorship on this platform. And on this platform he proceeded to canvass the In the course of the canvass, the partisans of Mr. Lincoln here, who in default of a ticket of their own had decided to vote for the ticket of the Union Democracy, undertook to misrepresent one of Judge Bramlette's speeches as a plea in behalf of Mr. Lincoln's policy, when Judge B. promptly corrected the misrepresentation in a public letter from which we take the explicit and emphatic passages I am made to say, in reference to the war policy of the administration—"While Kentucky expressed no opinions, either dissenting from or approving these measures," &c. At Carlisle, and in every speech made by me elsewhere, I stated, with all the point and distinctness that I could, that the Union Democracy of Kentucky condemned, in the strongest terms, all the radical measures of the war policy of the administration, and were pledged to use all peaceful and legitimate means to currect them; that they held the government to be right, and the best government in the world, and that it should not be overthrown because of any obnoxious measures or policy of any administration; that they hold that there is a marked distinction between any administration of the government and the government itself. The one is transient—of short duration, and may be all wrong; the other was formed "to endure forever," and is ception, and I have been particular so to do, that I gave my full and unreserved assent to the platform of the Union Democracy adopted at Louisville, in convention assembled on the 18th of March last.

Again, I am made to say in reference to the resident's emancipation proclamation: "All erritories were excepted where it could not be used to effect some useful purpose in sup-pressing the rebellion," and, "for my part, I would say, if emancipation will effect any-thing down there, go ahead." Neither the words nor the thoughts were ever mine. I have never believed "any useful purpose could be effected by it;" on the contrary, evil, and only evil; and, so far from saying "go ahead," have ever insisted most earnestly upon a re-versal of all-such measures as conflict with the Constitution, and tend only to evil. And this, with all other radical measures, I stand with the Union Democracy pledged to use all Referring in a subsequent letter to the charge that he in the same speech had approved The charge is wholly untrue. In no speech have I failed to state that I, with the Union Democracy, condemned the employment of negro soldiers, and was pledged to use all

In his statesmanlike and eloquent speech in this city at a later period of the canvass, Judge

Bramlette said: These points-undying devotion and loyalty to the government, and the determina-tion to adhere to it and preserve it at all hazards—the duty of the State Government to see the laws executed—the condemnation of the radical measures of the Federal administration in power, and the pledge to correct them by peaceful and constitutional means through the ballot box—all meet my most cordial approval and support. There is no issue made against them in Kentucky.

Such was Judge Bramlette's position as defined by himself and declared by his friends throughout the canvass. In his inaugural address, he stated and expanded the same position. We quote the following extracts from that masterly address, premising that the marks of emphasis are the author's: How shall the Constitution-abiding, Union loving, conservative men, North and South, meet the issue presented by those who, on the one hand, seek, by usurpation, to pervert the Uonstitution, to invade its sanctuaries, and overthrow its securities, and, on the other, to destroy the Constitution and the Union by forcible revolution—the one in political, the other in warlike array?

We must meet them in the modes sanctioned by the constitution. Through the ballot-box we must control legislation within just limits, and by the judiciary protest against the in-fliction of acts violative of the constitution; and with the whole resources and military power of our government we must crush the rebellion and restore the national authority over the revolted States. This is the pledge of conservatism; this we must do, or our govern-ern perishes, and with it the hope of free government forever! It should be borne in mind that we have now and will have at the close of the rebellion, the identical constitution which the extremists seek to destroy—the one by innovation, the othor by force. It cannot be altered except in the manner therein prescribed. The same facts exist in reference to each State—loyal and disloyal. Rebellion has not altered, or changed, or modi-fied either the Federal or State constitutions. Nor has the rebellion destroyed the existence of the States as States of the Union. Their revolt only suspends the action of the civil authority of the Federal Government within the restitutes the military authority until their rebellion ceases, and they consent to accept the civil instead of the military rule.

No reconstruction is necessary. The government is complete—not broken—not destroyed; but, by the blessing of God, shall endure forever. A revolted State has nothing, therefore, to do but to cease resistance to uty and law, and return to its fealty, organ and would be now but for the revolt place itself in harmony with the Federal Gov ernment. Thus all that was suspended by

The States, by rebellion, did not lose their status as States in the Union. Their harmonious and peaceful relations only were disturbed. By rebellion they invoked the military to supersede the civil rale during thime of rebellion. Revelt did not disorganiz and remit them to a territorial status, for revolution attempted, but failing, is no revolution rething is charged everything remains. notion attempted, but latting, is no revolution noting is changed, everything remains. It is the successful attempt which revolutionizes changes, destroys. It follows, therefore, the conterns can be demanded except to submit to the constitution and laws as they are. emand anything more would be to change ides with the rebellion—to make war upo the constitution at the moment the rebels be

But whilst so devoting our whole resources to uphold and maintain the government against rebellion, the same devotion to connal liberty will equally impel her oppose her will to all unconstitutional, al which may be suggested or adopted in the prosecution of our defensive war. This she will do through the peaceful medium of the ballot-box, by the persuasions of argument. and the legitimate force of our constituted tribunals. The recent vote of Kentucky proclaims that she will not fraternize with rebellion, either she will not fraternize with rebellion, eitner open or covert; and with equal emphasis that she will not fraternize with those who would pervert our just defence into a fanatical war upon the constitutional rights and liberties of the people of the Southern States.

We affiliate with the loyal men North and South, whose object and policy is to PRESERVE the Union and the Constitution, unchanged and unbroken, and to restore the people to harmony and peace with the government as they were before the rebellion.

It is not a restored Union—not a reconstructed Union—that Kentucky desires; but a preserved Union and restored peace upon a Kentucky hails with satisfaction the demonstration of conservative sentiment manifested by the recent elections of many of her sister States, and looks to the co-operation of con-servative men as the hope of a vigorous and wise prosecution of our defensive war, and an In this connection it may not be amiss to say that we have a decided objection to organizing and arming negro regiments.

Our objection is, that the arming of negroe humiliates the just pride of loyal men and injuriously affects their interests. The loyal man is as much injured by the arming of negroes as the disloyal man. The injury is indiscriminate. It encourages and promotes ingrabed interest here. insubordination amongst the slaves of loyal | years. He has, by intrigue and force, driven owners, depreciates their property, and endangers their security. The war should be against the rebel, not upon the loyal men. This is the white man's government; he is abundantly able to defend it. There are plenty of loyal white men to defend the government and suppress the rebellion; let them do it. As such forces are unnecessary to our defence, but really an obstacle to success by embittering the minds of the Southern people, and as it is hurtful to the interests and endangers the ecurity of loyal men and humiliates their without any compensating benefit, t should be abandoned. The loyal interests of the country should not be endangered or sacrificed, and its just pride be broken, by an uncalled for and needless experiment which can profit nothing, while it endangers much, and caters only to the passions of the extreme abclitionist, who has no respect for the Constitution, and no love for the Union.

The same position was reaffirmed by Gov ernor Bramlette in his annual message, from which we take the subjoined passages:

The vicious ambition of the Southern men, and the bigoted fanaticism of men of the North, in giving and accepting a sectional quarrel about a local institution, have forced upon us the most groundless, cruel, wicked in excusable warfare that ever afflicted any people of the earth. The slave had no more neces horse or any other species of property. But ambitious men of the South, who first sought to create a sectional division upon the tariff, in order to build up a government based upon the aristocracy of the slave owner, having been foiled by the incorruptible patriotism and indomitable will of Andrew Jackson, next gave and accepted a sectional quarrel about the slave with the fanaticism of the North, which deepens in its affections as its from others, it could be made to subserve the purposes of arousing sectional bitterness, ani-mosities, and prejudices, being the only propco-operating with Northern fanaticism, has government.

Holding, as we do, that the people alone are sovereign, and that the Federal Government represents the united sovereignty of the people for national purposes, and that the State Government represents their sovereignty within the limits of the State and for local purposes, we feel the more keenly the wrong inflicted upon us by those denying the foundation theory of our governmen one asserting the supremacy of State rights the other ignoring the rights of the people within State limits. By the flat of the sovereign people, the National Government exists; by the same flat State governments exists; tional sovereignty of the people, and North States. Each would form a new and different government. The truly loyal man as struggling to maintain a government—not to make one. The government we have is better than any which has ever preceded it, and superior to any suggested by revolutionists The secessionists, who would destroy the gov errment by force, and the fanatic who would destroy by iunovation, are alike the enemies of our government. The soldier who bares his bosom to the storm of war, does so under the conviction that he fights to maintain the government which blessed his fathers and shel-tered his gouth. The rebel fights to break up the government. The purpose of the fanatic is the same as the rebel—to make a new, a different, government than the one for which our fathers toiled and bled, and to maintain which our own brave sons now offer up their lives a willing and glorious sacrifice. Each is the common enemy of those who adhere to the Constitutional Union, formed by the wise men of the revolution.

Kentucky, with steadfast and invincible kentucky, with steadast and invincible loyalty, has constantly adhered to the true line of duty, bringing all her mental, moral, and physical force to bear against rebellion, and, with calm judgment and unwavering patriotism, with equal fidelity opposing the innovations of fanaticism which undermine our constitutional security and unity.

We will add here that the position thus affirmed and and reaffirmed by Governor Bramlette was approved by the General Assembly of Kentucky at the late session in these strong and comprehensive terms:

Resolved, That the inaugural address and message of Governor Bramlette to the present General Assembly, so far as the same treats of our federal relations, reflect truly the sentiments of the Union people of Kentucky, are approved by the present General Assembly, and are recommended to the patriotic consideation of the American people.

Against this resolution only five votes were cast in the House, and but three in the Senate, five of the total eight being cast by secessionists. The position accordingly is not only the position first announced and consistently maintained by Governor Bramlette, but the position of Kentucky, as authoritatively declared by her General Assembly.

Nay, the General Assembly, not content with this comprehensive approval of the position, reasserted specifically the parts concerning the enlistment of negroes and the new heresy of reconstruction, adopting with the like unanimity the following resolutions:

Resolved, That we regard as impolitic the enlistment of negroes as soldiers into the armies of the United States, and we earnestly protest against their enlistment within the State of Kentucky; and we respectfully request the President of the United States to remove from our limits and borders all camps for negro soldiers, by which our slaves are enticed to leave the service of their owners.

Resolved, That in the opinion of this Genreal Assembly, the constitutional relation of the States in rebellion, as regards the Union, was not changed by the criminal action of their people in attempting to seceed, thus foreing a civil war upon the country; and when the people of any or all those States shall, in good faith, return to their allegiance, their States are, as before the war, members of the great American Union, and the people thereof are citizens-all subject to the constitution and laws of the United States

Such is the position of Kentucky as declared by her General Assembly. And such is the position of Governor Bramlette as declared and repeated by himself in the past. What part of the position Governor Bramlette now occupies is inconsistent with the

and the Union Democrats in general stand exactly where they have ever stood. This fact is not merely plain but conspicuous. I is known of all men in Kentucky at least. But how is it with these slanderous partisans themselves? How many of them lately stood or professed to stand with Governor LINEN SHIRTS, Bramlette and the Union Democrats in general? How many of them indorsed or pretended to indorse the platform of the Union Democracy? How many of them applauded Governor Bramlette's inaugural address and his annual message? How many of them approved the resolutions of the General Assembly that we have quoted above? We certainly not a few, every one of whom is SUMMER HATS, himself a renegade as well as a slanderer. We owe it to the rest of these partisans to say that they are merely slanderers. Unquestionably they all together make up as precious a set of recreants as ever threw stones out of glass houses.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer, in an article entitled "WHAT THE DEMOCRACY CLAIMS," very forcibly sets forth the claims of the conservatives of the country. "Our political antagonists," says the Plain Dealer 'must concede that the vast expenditure of human life and public treasure which has been made under their auspices has yielded no adequate return. It might have been therwise, if an able Republican statesman otherwise, if an able Republican statesman had been at the helm, but assuredly the fact is as we have stated. The sacrifices of the past three years and six months have been of no avail toward the restoration of the Union. We have made the South a unit in arms against us, and, although we have obtained military possession of territory, we have made no progress in subduing the spirit of enmity which is cherished against us. New Orleans, Nashville, Norfolk, Memphis, and even St. Louis, are to-day hostile to the North. "It so happens that the man who has had the executive management of our affairs during this war, and whose policy has been in the main so disastrous to the cause of the Union, demands that he be left in full control of the Government for another period of four from the field every competitor, and challenges the suffrages of the people upon the ground that he is the only man competent to the grave exigencies of the hour. The Democracy claim that he is utterly incompetent, and that it is chiefly owing to his imbecility and vicious measures that the war exists to-day. They claim that he might long since have built up a Union party in the Southern States which would have at least circumscribed the rebellion to the Gulf States and weakened it in all. They also claim that they can, even at this late day, produce a counter revolution in the South by a judicious, national, and constitutional policy. If the people are dissatisfied with the barren fruits of the present Administration, let them make a change. It is utter folly to persevere in a course which has been so destructive and so mortifying. It is utter madness to rely upon a man who has thus far so signally failed them. Let the Democratic assumption of superior judgment be tested. Our party does not undervalue the gigantic character of the work they set for themselves, but they are willing to attempt it for the great cause of the Union, and for the well being of the generations yet to inhabit this continent. We do not reject the co-operation of good men. We invite persons of every political persuasion to join us. The life of the nation is put in extreme jeopardy. The soul of the nation, which is its organic law, is threatened by the malign influence of object darkens in complexion.

Slavery, being local, cannot be the subject of national action. Yet, being confined within certain contiguous States, and excluded in great peril of losing civil liberty besides. a set of dangerous politicians, who are crazed in great peril of losing civil liberty besides. There are scores of Republican journals which do not disguise the fact, but join us in appeals and protests concerning such a calamity. It is not too late for the people to retrace their steps, to give no further heed to demagogues and political stricksters, to place themselves right on the old fine constitutional record, and to make a final effort both for themselves and the misguided masses of the > South." No, it is not too late; but it will be, if the present opportunity is rejected. The present the people, awakened to a just sense of the peril of the country, rise up in their majesty, and embrace the present opportunity.

> Steele, in one of his four hundred letters to his wife, says that to love her is a liberal education, or words to this effect. The thought has been recalled frequently with admiration, and, amongst others, by Coleridge, if we are not mistaken; but, so far as we remember, no one has remarked that the thought is expressed with characteristic excellency in Shakespeare. Such, however, is the fact, as nobody will be surprised to learn. In Love's Labor's Lost, Biron says in his letter to Rosaline:

If Steele plagiarized the thought, he at least deserves the praise of stealing with taste.

Notice to Water Consumers.

Office Louisville Water Company, Louisville, Kr., July 29, 1884.

A TA MEETING OF THE BOARD OF DIREC Ators of the Louisville Water Company held at their office on the 27th July, 1884, the following rules of the Company were ordered to be published, viz:

Rule 9. The use of street-sprinklers or hand-hose shall be restricted to four (4) hours in each day—in the morning, between the hours of six and eight o'clock during the whole year, and in the evening, from the list of March to the list of September, between the hours of five and seven o'clock, and from the list of September to the list of March betwee the hours of half-past three and half-past five o'clock, and at no other time, day or night, under the penalty of immediately shutting off the supply of water from the premises.

Rule 10. If the hose-box is found out of order, cap off. hose attachments leaking, if converted into jets, suffered to run when not in use, or given into the hands of children to-play with, the supply of water will be shut off without previous notice.

Rule 11. All consumers or subscribers entitled to the use of the water shall keep their own service-pipe, top-cocks, key-boxes, and covers, and other apparatus n good repair, and shall prevent all unnecessary waste fracter. If the service-pipe, is found. Notice to Water Consumers.

tory assurance that future abuses will not be committed.

The Board have directed that these rules of the Company be strictly enforced. It is to be hoved that water-consumers will recognize their justice and propriety, and chearfully conform to them. A person taking a street-sprinkler, and paying for the use of it, has the right to sprinkle one half the street in front of his own premises. He has no right to sprinkle in front of his neighbor, nor has he the right to slush the street and flood the gutters in front of his own premises, nor has he the right to slumish me to his neighbor, in either small or larga quantities.

A. HARRIS,

President Louisville Water Company.

N. B.—Any consumer wishing to use water in greater quantities, or for other purposes, than contemplated in his original permit, will be allowed to do so by calling at the office and paying for the same.

THE ELECTION TO-DAY .- The citizens of the First City Legislative District are to elect today a member of the lower House to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Mr. Irvine. A City Marshal will also be chosen. We hope to see some little interest manifested in filling these positions worthily.

The Hon. George Robertson is a candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals, to succeed Chief Justice Duvall. Should he be elected, he will add dignity and bring great research to the bench; and nothing can prevent his election, if the voters of the District are generally notified of his candidateship. No doubt every effort will be made to spread

THIRTY-FIFTH KENTUCKY MOUNTED INFAN-TRY .- We understand that the 35th regiment Kentucky mounted infantry is ordered to Lexington. Since its organization, the regiment has been stationed in the Green river region. Col. Starling, with some five hundred of this regiment, has been scouting for the last thirty days in the counties on the Ohio river where there had collected a large body of guerillas under Cols. Jones, Hollis, Sypert, Bowlin, and others. They drove Jones and Bowlin out of the country, and a detachment under Capt. Pangree rounted Hollis's command, killing Hollis and several others. The detachment stopped at Princeton thoroughly to scout that part of the country, but was prevented from doing so by an order to report at Lexington. We have heard of various skirmishes and chases after guerilla bands by different detachments of this regiment which reflect great credit on the officers and men. So far, we never heard of any detachment having met with a defeat. One of the little skirmishes which a detachment of this regiment had deserves more than a passing notice. Sergeant James, company G, was sent out with fifteen men by Colonel Starling, from Hopkinsville, after a squad of guerillas who had cut the telegraph wire between Clarksville and Hopkinsville. Thile searching for them near Pembroke, Fodd county, he was suddenly halted in the woods by a body of mounted men the advance of whom were dressed in Federal uniforms. The leader demanded of James who he and his men were. The sergeant replied that they were a Union scout searching for guerillas. He was told: "By - you need not go any further, as you have found them." And then, turning to his men, the leader continued: "There are the d-d Yankees; go into them." Sergeant James told them to come ahead, and, dismounting his men, poured a volley into the guerillas. Their Captain then ordered a charge, leading it himself for twenty or thirty yards, when, observing that his men were charging in the wrong direction, he incontinently turned and charged the same way. They mounted, and chased the rascals eight or ten miles, killing two, capturing two horses and equipments, three guns and seven pistols, four coats and thirteen hats. The guerilla lose the services of the 35th, as the officers and men thoroughly understand, not only the geography of the country, but also the mode of warfare calculated to entrap and break up the bands of robbers and murderers that infest that section of the State. No regiment can fill its place, for no other regiment possesses the same knowledge of the country and its

Lieutenant Goode, company A, started after the same gang some eight hours afterwards, killing three, and capturing several horses and guns and fifteen hats. That band of guetry where the 35th is stationed.

A correspondent wishes to know how r State can obtain credit for the negroes ho are taken from its limits to other States and enlisted there. The recent order of Adjutant General Thomas says that as persons are in the habit of coming into Kentucky with a view of persuading slaves to run away and pass into the free States bordering on the Ohio, where they are enlisted for the bounties -the pegroes receiving but a small portion thereof, and, in such cases, the State of Kentucky fails to receive credit on their quota of troops, the military authorities, as well as all Provost Marshals, in the State are ordered. and the navy on the Ohio river are requested to take possession of all such negroes and deliver them to the nearest military commander, in order that they may be enlisted in Kentucky regiments.

Before the 15th instant, by the order of Major-General Burbridge, such persons now residing in this State as have been banished from other States for insurrectionary acts or rebel sentiments, must leave Kentucky, not to return to it during the war. Gen. Burbridge revokes all safeguarda heretofore given by him or any of his district subordinates. If any persons amenable to this order fail to comply with its provisions, they will be arrested and transported beyond the limits of the United States. There are persons, we understand, now in our State who were assigned to this location by direct orders from the War Department or the President. It seems important that Gen. Burbridge should explain whether his order comprehends such cases.

"BATTLE IN THE CLOUDS."-This is the title very fine song, the words of which were by W. D. Howell, Esq., United States Consul at Venice, and were suggested by Gen. Joe Hooker's grand assault on Lookout Mountain. The music is by Mr. Keller, and will become very popular. The song will be nt by mail, free of postage, by J. A. Howell & Co., Jefferson, Ohio, at forty cents a copy, or three copies for one dollar. Mr. Howell is known as a very successful poet, and the incident which he has commemorated in song is one of the most gloriously thrilling

A CITIZEN SHOT .- Last evening, Polk Johnson, a young man about eighteen years of age, shot Mr. John Krebs, a man of fifty-two, employed in Van Seggern's planing-mill. The ball entered Krebs's neck, and it is thought that the wound will prove mortal. The assault occurred on Madison, between Hancock and Clay streets, almost opposite the residence of Krebs. The report is, that a refusal to vote for some candidate to-day excited Johnson's anger, but we shall await an investigation before we speak further of the occurrence. Johnson was arrested.

HOTEL THIEF .- A man named Walter Howard was arrested in the United States Hotel, last evening, having skeleton keys in his posession, and "outsiders." The porter of the house regarding his conduct as suspicious. directed him to leave the vicinity of some rooms, when Howard drew a knife and attempted an assault, which was frustrated. He was lodged in prison by officer Thos. Slater.

BERIOUS ACCIDENT .- Charles Bernhard . a ngle man boarding at Buckel's Tavern, on Third street, between Main and the river, fell from a two story window about two o'clock yesterday morning, and injured himself, it is supposed, fatally-having fallen on his head. He was taken to the City Hos-

We cannot afford to sacrifice the future welfare of our country for the satisfaction of anybody's orejudice, or the maintenance of anybody' consistency. It is of first importance to overcome the rebellion; we have staked our all upon the issue, and no matter by what instruments, by what means, however disa greeable the way or mode, everything must b abordinated to this one object.

CHAMBERSBURG, July 31. On the morning of the 30th, the rebels under command of McCousland and a force of about four hundred men entered Chambersburg, Pa., and demanded $500,000 from the this requisition was in writing, and was signed by General Jacob Early. It is now established by indisputable proof that this demand was a great part of the control of the tablished by indisputable proof that this de-mand was a more pretence on the part of the marauders to cover the purpose formed before they reached the town to burn it to the ground without giving any time to remove private property, and scarcely time to the citizens to remove their families. They fired the houses of our citizens in perhaps fifty places. Over two hundred and fifty houses in the heart of two bundred and fifty houses in the heart of the town were consumed, including all the public buildings, stores, and hotels—about two-thirds of the town, containing six thou-sand inhabitants. Thus a large body of citi-zens are reduced from comfortable wealth to poverty. Many families lost all their bedding and clothing except what they had on their persons. The loss will be largely over one million of dollars. Without aid from abroad, NASHVILLE, July 29. Gen. Sherman's army was again put in mction yesterday, to accomplish an important operation looking to the early siege of Atlanta. The public may rest assured that everything has been done successfully. It appears that Gen. Bragg came to Atlanta from Richmond, and at the council of war held for the purpose it was stated that Atlanta must be held at all hazards. Johnston relied that to do a would require the configuration plied that to do so would require the sacrifice of the whole army, and he therefore resigned. The command was then tendered to Hardee, who would not accept it on any terms. I was then given to Hood.

The rebeis are said to have constructed strong works at Atlanta, and it is not at all unlikely that they will keep us at bay for there will be great suffering.

Hood can scarcely save the remnant of his army. HARRISBURG, July 31. Gen. McCousland was in command of the rebel troops when they burned Chambersburg. After he had taken formal possession of the town he made a proclamation, demanding one hundred thousand dollars in geld. It was, of course, impossible to comply with it. It was made, doubtless, in confidence of a failure, and to make a pretext for the premed tature, and to make a protext for the premeditated destruction of the city.

The fact that most of the valuable portion of merchandize had been removed added to the rage and disappointment of the rebels, and, when they were thus inspirited, an order was issued to fire the public buildings.

HARRISBURG, July 31, 10 P. M. When Gen. Averill reached Chambersburg the flames bad attained such headway as to render it impossible for the men to stay is. The word "onward" rang along the line, and the rebels burried over the road toward Mc-Jonnellsburg, but the rear of their retreating column could not fail to distinguish the approach of Averill, so they were prevented from committing any deeds of violence. without even taking the oath. Major John Brennan .- The Lexington Observer, in announcing the return home of this gallant soldier and accomplished gentleman, who was wounded in both arms at the battle of Kenesaw Mountain, in a charge upon and within twenty feet of the enemy's works, says he is still suffering from his wounds, but is improving, and trusts ere long to be able to take his position in the field. Major Brennan is a native of Lexington, and his friends there are justly proud of him. They know him to be brave, chivalrous, highminded, and honorable; they have watched his progress with great interest from the time he entered the service as a Second Lieutenant in and Adjutant of the 20th Kentucky until the present time. He has been in as many severe engagements with the enemy as any officer from Kentucky, and in all of them he has behaved in the most gallant manner. He is one of the rising young officers of the day, winning his way to distinction and promotion by his own right arm, and is destined to yet higher honors. Ex-Governor Letcher has written to Mayor Mayo, of Richmond, a letter concerning the burning of his house, which is published in the Whig of the 21st ult. In it he says he expected that the destruction would be completed, but he always supposed that they would allow the furniture and his family's clothing to be removed. The Ex-Governor seems to have forgotten his own line of conduct, when, in the early part of the rebellion, he refused to give up the clothing of Mrs. Purser Bradford, and, for all we know, she has never yet received them. The rebels themselves commenced the burning of private property and the destruction of articles of apparel used by women and children; they have, therefore, no right to complain when resort is had to retaliatery measures. ANOTHER GUERILLA OUTRAGE.-The Evansville Journal states that the residence of Major Kinney, at Henderson, was entirely consumed by fire on Friday morning, being the act, no doubt, of the guerillas prowling in that vicinity. Major Kinney was absent from home, and his wife and family were staying at a neighbor's. The fire occurred about 4 o'clock, and nothing was saved but a few articles of parlor furniture, including Mrs. Kinney's piano. Major Kinney is an earnest Union man, was for a time in the Federal army as Major of the 12th Kentucky cavalry, and is a member of the present State Legislature. William Jones, of the 53d Indians, who met his death in one of the recent battles in Georgia, was first wounded in one thigh, and in a few minutes afterwards was struck in the other. These wounds were not of a character to induce him to leave the field, and he still retained command of his regiment, and, while encouraging and rallying his men, was struck by a cannon ball, which tore away all the upper part of his head. He was from Grandview, Spencer county, Indiana, where his family still reside. In his death the service lost a gallant officer and his community one of its most respected citizens. The annual meeting of the National Teachers' Association will be held at Ogdensburg, New York, commencing on Wednes day, August 10th, at ten o'clock A. M., and continuing three days. A rebel officer, who passed through our city on Saturday as a prisoner, states, that, for seventy-five days before the battle of the 22d ult. at Atlanta, he had been in the trenches all the time without intermission and, that, for several nights previous to that fight, had been without a wink of sleep, so ceaseless was the activity demanded by Sherman's untiring movements. ANOTHER STABBING AFFRAY.-Last night etween nine and ten o'clock G. W. NOVEL SCENE AT A WEDDING .- The Bolton (England) Chronicle tells this story: An unusual circumstance occurred at a wedding in the parish church at Farnsworth. Joseph Hindley, a widower of about eight weeks loneliness, calling himself sixty years of age, and judged by his "good-natured friends" to be about three-score and ten, was allied to Harriet Booth, aged fifty-six. The ceremony having been completed at the altar by the Rev. W. H. Burns, the bride and bridegroom ecompanied him to the vector to six the accompanied him to the vestry to sign the register. That verification being secured, the ridegroom asked permission to sing a verse of a hymn before they left that sanctum for the wiles and temptations and troubles of the outer world. rotained on the term to secure the performance of the lease.

If the judgment cannot be made a lease of the said road property, franchises, &c. for a term of years, upon the terms above indicated, then the same will be said absolutely to the highest bidder; the purchaser to give bond, with sufficient scennity, conditioned to may the amounts decreed as due, within six months from the day of sale, bearing interest, and having the force of judgment; and to pay the accruing instainents of interest as the same fall due upon the mortgage debt; and finally to pay also the $30,000 principal upon the falling due thereof, to wit, January Jst., 1870. Lien to be retained upon the entire property, &c., to secure the rights of the parties.

The amount of this decree due and to become due will not exceed $59,000, whereas the from upon the road-bed alone is estimated by competent judges to be now worth $30,000. The commissioner therefore feels fally justified in searing the public that this is one of the very best chances for profitable investments that can anywhere be found.
